Roads Withdraw Their Demand After Adverse Report of President's Fact-Finding Commission

CHICAGO—(AP)—The nation's major railroads cancelled an order for a 15 per cent wage cut for approximately 930,000 employees Friday in the hope their action would expedite government aid. The decision forestalled a strike and cleared the way for drafting legislation to help the carriers.

New Eligibility Rules Adopted by State Association

Players Changing Districts Must Stay Out for One Year

BAR OTHER STATES

Player Ineligible by Other State's Ruling Ineligible Here

LITTLE ROCK—The Governing Board of the Arkansas Athletic Association revamped the system for deciding the state junior and senior high school basketball championships and made drastic changes in the eligibility regulations at a meeting at West Side Junior High School Friday.

The new basketball plan calls for two tournaments in each district. One will be for schools with an enrollment of more than 175 students and the second for schools with smaller enrollment. The meets will be held at the same time, but not at the same place.

The winning team of each district will be eligible to enter a state tournament. Schools in the Class B division may enter a district tournament of the Class A, or schools with the higher enrollment, but schools with the larger enrollment may not participate in a Class B tournament.

Winners of the two state tournaments may meet for the state championship. Both state and district tournaments are to be run off on a single elimination basis.

No team will be permitted to play more than two games each day, and those games must be at least one session apart. The same rules will apply to invitational tournaments.

The board voted down proposals to limit the number of games a team may play each week.

Eligibility Changes

Another change which was regarded as important will make a student ineligible for inter-school competition after attending a four-year high school eight semesters or a three-year high school six semesters. Attendance of 15 days or less in a semester shall be regarded as a semester under the rule. This rule will become effective September 1, 1940.

Players moving from one district to another for any reason will be ineligible for one year. The board added the notation that "there will be no exceptions to this rule." The proposal caused much discussion. Coaches of small schools especially in the plantation districts, contended that most of their players moved from one district to another almost every season, and if those boys were declared ineligible, it would rob their schools of football teams, and those boys of a chance to play.

Proponents of the proposal said it, and the semester rule, would eliminate 95 per cent of the eligibility squabbles. J. L. Pratt, superintendent of Malvern schools, said it would do more to clean up Arkansas athletic conditions than any other move that could be made.

Suggesting that his school "is unable to buy our athletes, we have to grow them, and we are in favor of other schools having to do the same thing." James Abraham of Lonoke said unless a boy was a better athlete than his father was, the family probably would not have to move around each year.

If a player, ineligible in another state moves to Arkansas, he will be ineligible here, under a new rule. It was adopted because it was said that many players from Texas had moved into Arkansas to participate in athletics. Texas has a 19-year age limit for high school athletes.

Sunday Games Disproven

The group rejected a proposal to prohibit Sunday football, but adopted a resolution disapproving of Sunday games.

Member schools hereafter will not be permitted to play football games earlier than the Friday following the formal opening of school.

A proposal to reduce the age limit for high school participation from 21 years to 20, was rejected.

Z. M. Goza, of Arkadelphia, was elected president for a third consecutive time. Mr. Goza will be chairman of the Executive Committee. Ben Williams, of Ashdown, was re-elected on the Executive Committee. Other members are James Abraham, Lonoke, and R. H. Moore, Jonesboro.

Blytheville Defeats Hope After Hard Battle

Visitors Put Over Four Touchdowns for 24-0 Victory

Three of Four Blytheville Scores Made on Three Plays

GAME HARD FOUGHT

Mosley, a Great Back; Fulkerson Is Defensive Star of Game

By LEONARD ELLIS

The Hope High School football team played its best game of the year here Friday night but went down to defeat, 24 to 0, before a driving, hard-running Blytheville team that packed a 10-pound weight advantage.

The Bobcats fought savagely throughout the game—but made three mistakes—all of which resulted in Blytheville touchdowns.

Don't get us wrong. We are not trying to alibi the defeat. Blytheville was the best team Friday night and proved it before approximately 2,500 fans. We are merely trying to point out that it was a better game than the score indicates. Take three plays out of the game—and it would have been 6 to 0.

But that's football.

The Chickasaws put over a touchdown in each of the four quarters, the first coming in five minutes after the opening kickoff—the hard way.

The First Score

Blytheville received to start, Jimmy Taylor's kick sailing to Russ Mosley on the five. He returned to his 30, was hit hard and dropped the ball. David Coleman recovered for Hope. Coleman then went around his right end for six. Eason plunged for three. With a yard to go for a first down, the Bobcats drew a 15-yard penalty on the next play.

On fourth down, Parsons was smothered and the Chicks took the ball. Stirling Young on an end-around, broke loose and carried the ball to Hope's 40. Ford hit the line for one. Hope drew a five-yard penalty on the next play. Thompson dropped back and shot a pass to Russ Mosley who was brought down on the 11-yard line. Young swung wide on an end around play and went across standing up for the first score of the game. Ford's attempted pass for extra point failed to find its mark.

Blytheville's second marker came about the middle of the second period. With the ball deep in their own territory, Young, on another end around play, broke loose for the longest run of the night, an 85-yard sprint for a touchdown. Warrington's attempted kick for extra point was wide.

About five minutes after the second half opened, Russ Mosley took Parsons' punt on the 50-yard line and made a spectacular dash through the entire Bobcat team to score. Warrington's attempted kick was blocked.

Blytheville's fourth touchdown was the result of a long pass. It came early in the final period. Parsons punted to Mosley who was brought down on the 50-yard line. Ford went off his left tackle for 15 yards, placing the ball on the 35.

Mosley moved it to the 25 in two attempts. The Chicks drew a five-yard penalty on the next play. With the ball on the 30, Thompson, a left-handed

Comptroller Expects Half of Listed 337,000 to Go to Polls

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Arkansas voters, with principally issues instead of personalities before them, will turn out approximately 150,000 strong at next Tuesday's election.

State Comptroller J. O. Goff, whose department keeps records of qualified voters, made this estimate Saturday, adding that with fair weather the total might rise as high as 175,000.

Approximately 337,000 qualified voters are listed, Goff said, but lack of local contests for office will keep nearly half that number away from the polls.

Coach Thomsen's Contract Renewed

Razorback Football Mentor Is Given a Three-Year Extension

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—The University of Arkansas Board of Trustees extended the contract of Head Football Coach Fred C. Thomsen another three years at a meeting in the office of President John C. Futrell Friday night.

The board will meet again Saturday to adjust details concerning an application for a PWA loan for a women's dormitory. Location of the proposed building and amortization of the loan required were also discussed. The board accepted a $100,000 WPA project calling for landscaping of the new football stadium and surrounding grounds, and eventual landscaping of the entire campus. The university's part of the project will amount to approximately $13,500, Secretary T. C. Carlson said.

The Yerger High School Tigers won their fourth straight victory here Friday afternoon by defeating the Washington High Lions of Texarkana, 20 to 0.

Outstanding in Hope's victory over Texarkana was the playing of Pink Corrigan, Ponderexter and Grady. C. Shaw also played a good game for the Tigers.

The Hope Fire Department announced Saturday that Jessie Clarice Brown had won the $2 award for the best theme among grade school students on "Why I Should Be Interested in Fire Prevention Week."

Death Valley Proves Attractive to Tourists

LOS ANGELES.—(AP)—There are at least 58,320 persons for whom the dry, scorching wastes of Death Valley hold no terrors. That is the number of persons who visited the spot in the last year, according to the records of Superintendent T. R. Goodwin.

Now a national park, Death Valley has been improved with good roads and dependable water supply, and numerous hotels have been established. Travel in the last five years has increased 550 per cent.

Rescue Sailor as Lifeboat Drill Becomes Reality

Death was cheated by coincidence in dramatic fashion during a recent trip of the S. S. Boringuen from Puerto Rico to New York. When the dread cry "Man overboard!" sounded on the ship, it at first seemed just part of the game being played—a routine lifeboat drill. But the fact that a life was really at stake was quickly realized when seamen spotted one of their mates thrashing about in the sea. By the happy coincidence of the boat drill, everything was in readiness for a quick rescue. In the unusual photo above, the sailor is seen in circle at left, while at right the rescue crew goes into action.

Texarkana Flier Is Located, Safe

Feel Like Spanking Him, Says Worried But Relieved Father

LITTLE ROCK—W. H. Proctor, 26-year-old Texarkana aviator, who has been an object of a wide search since he took off from Adams Field here in his Aeromarine plane Monday, October 24, en route to St. Louis, Mo., was located in Joliet, Ill. Friday night and is scheduled to return to his home Saturday.

O. H. Proctor, the youth's father, who instituted the search for his son several days ago, said that he had been notified by members of his family that his son had telegraphed from Joliet that he would return home. The elder Proctor left for Texarkana immediately on receipt of the message.

Mr. Proctor said no reason was given by his son for his failure to notify his parents of his whereabouts. Until Charles L. Spear of Little Rock, a conductor for the Missouri Pacific Lines, reported seeing young Proctor at Poplar Bluff, Mo., Little Rock aviator had flown over the territory between Little Rock and Pechonahs searching for the small yellow plane.

The aviator's father said: "I feel like spanking him, but I am mightily relieved that he is safe." Mr. Proctor said that his son had been flying approximately eight months and that his present flight was the most ambitious of his career.

The citizen wishing to vote for the courthouse must cast his ballot favorably on both questions, Mr. Graves explained.

Pine Bluff Goes Down Before North Little Rock, Score 8-0

Hot Springs Trojans Hit Stride to Run Over Camden's Panthers, 36 to 6—Prescott Loses to Paragould

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Held on even terms and scoreless during the first half, the North Little Rock Wildcats threw the state high school conference into a topsy-turvy condition by defeating the heretofore undefeated Pine Bluff Zebras, 8 to 0, in a sensational game before a crowd estimated at 7,000 here Friday night.

The North Little Rock delegation went completely daffy over the first Wildcat victory over a Zebra football team in history.

Taking the play away from the tricky Zebras after scoring a safety in the third quarter, the Wildcats went wilder than the North Side Rides in smashing down for a touchdown in the last period.

The Zebras fought savagely against odds that were too much. The Cowans were not to be denied in this one. North Little Rock's safety followed an unsuccessful Wildcat threat a minute before the finish of the third period. Zavislak's 41-yard pass to Stinson placed the ball deep in Pine Bluff territory. Dale Duckworth made nine, and the North Siders again tried the air but Ray Hutson intercepted Zavislak's next shot.

Unable to gain against the Wildcat line that surged harder as the battle progressed, the Zebras were forced to kick. Ray Hutson, brilliant twin brother of the equally brilliant Rob Hutson, lined up for the booting job. It was blocked by Buddy Fewell. The ball bounded in the Pine Bluff end zone for an automatic safety.

Trojans Take Camden
HOT SPRINGS.—After spotting the visitors a touchdown on the eighth play of the game, Hot Springs High School Trojans found their stride and went on to defeat Camden, 38 to 6, here Friday night.

Trivonoff, speedy Camden halfback, stole the show in the first quarter. In five plays he made 45 yards of Camden's 65-yard march to the goal.

The Trojans did not score until the second quarter. An intercepted pass or of the equally brilliant Rob Hutson, lined up for the booting job. It was blocked by Buddy Fewell. The ball bounded in the Pine Bluff end zone for an automatic safety.

Bay State Apparently Winner in Conflict With 3 Others

A special master recommended to the supreme court that the Bay State be decreed as Green's legal domicile—giving it the right to collect a $4,947,000 levy, if the court concurs.

An article in a recent issue of a national magazine advocates the use of safety belts for motorists.

Roosevelt Pleads for Liberal Vote

President Denounces Opposition on Eve of General Election

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Friday night urged the American people to elect next Tuesday candidates "known for their experience and their liberalism." The president, speaking from the library of his home here, also appealed for election of candidates "without regard to race, color or creed."

His 3,600-word address, broadcast over three national radio chains, rejected the "negative purposes" proposed by old-line Republicans and Communists alike—for they are people whose only purpose is to survive against any other Fascist threat than their own.

The president urged the re-election of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in his home state of New York and others on the state ticket, mentioning Senator Robert F. Wagner, candidate for re-election, and Representative James M. Mead, candidate for the short senatorial term, by name.

He also praised the record of Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan in handling Michigan strikes, saying he had substituted negotiators for risk of bloodshed. Murphy is opposed for re-election by former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican.

Without mentioning Lehman's Republican opponent, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, by name, Mr. Roosevelt said pointedly:

"We need more active law enforcement, not only against the lords of the underworld, but also against the lords of the overworld."

Kenamer to Get Parole in 6 Months

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—Governor E. W. Marland announced late Tuesday he would issue a six-month parole to Phil Kenamer, 23-year-old convicted socialist slayer, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kenamer.

Marland's clemency board recommended the parole to enable Kenamer to accompany his mother, dangerously ill, on a trip to Arizona. He has served two years and eight months of a 25-year manslaughter sentence for the slaying of John Gorrell, Jr., in November 1934.

The state lunacy commission declared Kenamer sane after an examination Tuesday.

Re-Armament Possible By Democratic Means

An ominous murmur is beginning to be heard in the land in connection with the new re-armament program.

This program, it is explained, will be terribly expensive. Further, it will have to be rushed. In re-arming we shall be competing, more or less indirectly, with the great totalitarian nations, and because we are a free country we shall be at a great disadvantage in the competition.

Therefore, it is argued, we might as well face the fact that in order to re-arm we shall have to surrender some of our cherished liberties. Neither labor nor capital can expect ordinary treatment; national security is at stake, and we shall have to countenance all sorts of interference with profit levels, wage scale and the like.

It would be a fine thing if, before this sort of talk spread any farther, the people as a whole would get up on their collective hind legs and shout it down once and for all.

At first blush it sounds reasonable enough, to be sure.

The totalitarian states can re-arm cheaply—comparatively cheaply, anyway. They can conscript labor and commandeer factories and raw materials. They can tell working men to toil longer hours at reduced wages and make them like it. They can set whatever prices they choose for materials and can ration the supplies as they choose. They can force industries to produce at any profit level the bureaucracy may decide on. For the duration of the re-armament drive they can suspend any or all of the ordinary laws of economics.

A land which can do none of those things will have a hard time matching ship for ship, gun for gun and plane for plane with these dictator-ruled nations. It will pay much more for what it gets and it will take longer to get it. And so we meet this new argument—that until we have re-armed sufficiently we ought to borrow a few ideas from the people who are re-arming against.

Now it happens that one of the principal things we are re-arming for is the defense of the American way of life. It is not merely our commercial interests which seem to be threatened; it is the whole system of a free society, the whole network of ideals and beliefs and privileges under which, as we believe, human beings have the best possible chance to gain a little ground in their never-ending pursuit of happiness.

And it also happens that these "handicaps" which make our re-armament slow and costly are fundamental parts of that system. Give them up, and the system itself is no longer recognizable. Freedom of capital and labor are as vital in the American way of life as freedom of speech and freedom of religion.

So if we suspend or infringe on them in order to compete with the Fascists, we lose the battle before it begins. Whatever happens after that, we don't win. We give Fascism its greatest victory right at the start.

It is of the highest importance that we get straight on that point right now. We can pay any price for re-armament—except that price.

It is believed that pneumonia is frequently transmitted from one person to another as are other diseases of the lungs and the breathing tracts, but it is known also that the germs of pneumonia may be carried in the mouth, nose and throat of healthy persons. Wherever people are crowded together, the incidence of pneumonia is high.

Pneumonia is particularly serious in little children and in old people and, of course, little children and old people are more affected than those of middle age. For very old people, pneumonia has been called the friend of the aged, because those who are old escape gradual decay and dissolution, passing with an illness that is sudden, short and not often painful.

Pneumonia is much more common in the city than in the country simply because of the overcrowding that exists in cities. Moreover, it is much more common in those who are exposed to cold and to the hardships of life, in people who have their resistance weakened, and in those suffering from chronic disease or who over-indulge in alcohol.

Whereas many other infectious diseases can attack a person but once, pneumonia may attack on repeated occasions. Although it has not been definitely proved that pneumonia is associated with cold and with chilling, the experience of great numbers of doctors almost certainly establishes such a relationship.

Pneumonia Is Captain of the Men of Death Among Infections

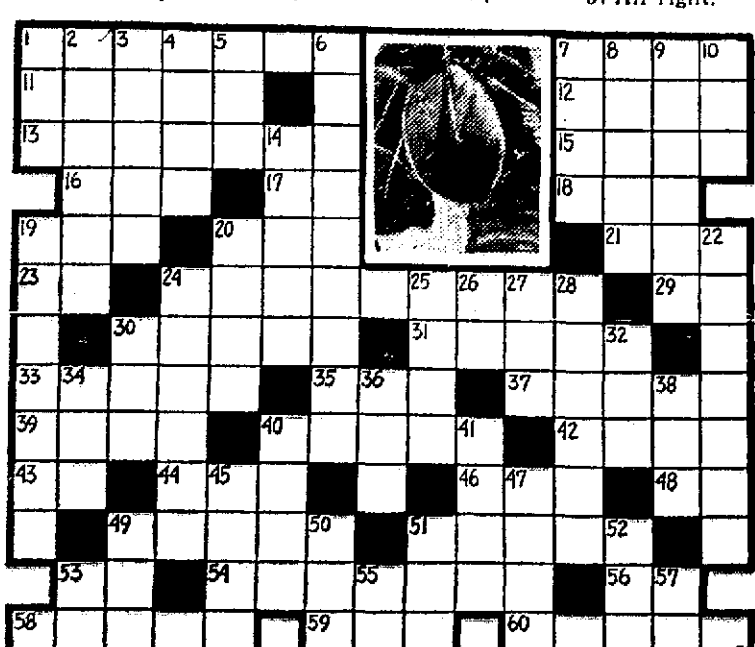

With the coming of the football season, cold, chill winds of fall and winter, and increased exposure of the body to the atmosphere the pneumonia rate begins to rise. Today pneumonia is among the most serious of all the diseases and has certainly become the "captain of the men of death" among acute infections. This phrase, commonly credited to William Osler, actually was first used by John Bunyan, author of "Pilgrim's Progress" in relationship to consumption.

Pneumonia was known to ancient physicians and was described as long as 2200 years ago by Greek doctors. Our modern knowledge of the disease, however, is credited to that famous French physician, Laennec, who in-

On Friday afternoon at her attractive home on Division street, Mrs. J. T. West entertained a group of friends as special compliment to Mrs. Miltie McCann of Fort Worth, Texas, who is the house guest of her daughter, Mrs. E. F. McFadden and Mr. McFadden. The reception room of the West home so attractive with its permanent decorations had an added beauty in its flower arrangements of lovely chrysanthemums and roses. The guests were received at the door by Mrs. Roy Anderson and were greeted in the reception room by Mrs. West and the honoree and Mrs. McFadden. Pleasant conversation was enjoyed and greetings were exchanged, after which the guests were invited into the dining room where lovely flowers were gracefully arranged, and the lace covered tea table was centered with a most unique central arrangement, resembling a huge cactus, surrounded by colorful blooms, topped with a small United States flag symbolizing Armistice day. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Charles Haynes served at the coffee tray and little Miss Elsie Hyatt served at the water tray. Mrs. West was assisted in dispensing hospitality in the dining room by her grand daughter Miss Hattie Anne Feild.

Blytheville Defeats

passer, dropped back and heaved a long one to Dan Fulkerson, right end, who gathered it in the five-yard line and stepped back to score. Ford attempted to kick the extra point, but missed.

Although the Bobcats were inside Blytheville's 25-yard line on several occasions—the locals made only one dangerous threat. It came early in the second period when Parsons punted to Mosley who was hit so hard the ball shot out of his arms and Hope recovered on the 9-yard line.

Enson and Fulkerson tried the line, but found no holes. Parsons tossed a short pass to Coleman, but no gain. On fourth down, Parsons passed to Enson who was hit hard for no gain. Blytheville kept the ball. Ford hit the line for Enson, then Young broke loose on an end around for 85 yards and pay dirt.

Other than Young's 85-yard run, Mosley's 50-yard return of a punt through the Hope team, and Thompson's 30-yard pass for touchdown—it was a good ball game.

The Defensive Side
Jack Fulkerson, Bobcat left end, was probably the outstanding defensive man on the field. When right, he's a hard man to get a round. Fulkerson played a bang-up game, repeatedly spilling and chilling the Chickasaw interference and ball carriers. On several occasions he tore through to throw Mosley and Thompson, the big threats, for losses.

Jimmy Taylor and Captain Dean Parsons, defensive guards, knifed through the big Blytheville line to smother plays.

The offensive stars of the ball game were Russ Mosley and Thompson. Mosley proved he was an all-state

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

KEEPING SCORE

Correct exposure, as in this snapshot, yields more pleasing pictures. Use an exposure guide.

SWINGING out of autumn, why not pause for a moment to total up your season's picture-score, before you dive into the fun of this winter's picture-taking?

Take your recent prints, figure out your batting average, determine your most frequent mistakes—and you will be better able to avoid those errors for the future.

How many times were you "struck out" by underexposure? Bring out those underexposed films, and study them. Are they mostly early-morning or late-afternoon shots? If so, you should watch the sun more carefully. When it is near the horizon, and begins to take on a yellow tinge, its light is much weaker—and you should compensate by using a wider lens opening, or a slower shutter speed.

Did you underexpose on cloudy days? Light is weaker then. The latitude of modern films will take care of reasonable errors in exposure, but on a dull day it's always safe to open up the lens to the next larger mark—f.6.3 instead of f.8, for example.

If you underexposed on bright, sunny days, when the light was at its best, you were simply using too small a lens opening for your shutter speed.

back, conclusively. His running was brilliant.

The Statistics

How to See Football

The Spinner

By JERRY BRONDFIELD
Once upon a time, as the story goes, a halfback took the ball from center and turned around quickly to hand the pigskin to another back coming around behind him. But the other back had stumbled and fallen. Discovering he had no one to hand the ball to, the first back turned into the line of scrimmage again, was pleasantly surprised to find a hole there and rambled through for a sizeable gain.

That was the spinner born.

The spinner is a tricky maneuver which is used, among other things, to draw in the secondary and open the way for forward passes and end runs.

In looking for a spinner the spectator should watch the back, or backs close to the line. The ball will be centered to one of them and he will immediately pivot around until his back is to the scrimmage line while someone comes across to fake at taking the ball.

Theoretically, the defense is fooled by the fake and the man with the ball then spins back into a hole that has been prepared for him. If he turns back the way he pivoted it is known as a half spin; if he continues all the way around it is a full spinner.

Because backfield men fake so realistically these days, defensive linemen are in great fear of a spinner.

Some backs—like Harvard's Vernon Stuck last year—became famous for their effectiveness on a spinner, being able to streak back into the line of scrimmage with full power on their second step, and get away for five or six yards before the secondary is able to discover who has the ball.

Lizard Gets the Spider But Cat Gets Lizard

LOS ANGELES.—(AP)—A mortal enemy of the black widow spider and her eggs has been found by Dr. Raymond B. Cowles of the University of California at Los Angeles. It is a lizard, known popularly as the alligator lizard.

Harmless to human beings, the lizard has been successfully used in Dr. Cowles' own home to eliminate the poisonous spiders. There's only one catch to the arrangement—while the lizard preys on the spiders, the common house cat preys on the lizards.

Soil Building

Hempstead county farmers are being urged by Oliver L. Adams, county agent, to check their 1938 farming operations to be sure they will be able to claim their full soil-building allowances under the 1938 program.

Though $40,298 was allowed to Hempstead county in 1937 for soil building payments, only $28,391 were claimed for soil building payments, according to Mr. Adams.

It is probable that many farmers were unable to claim payment for soil building practices because they were unfamiliar with the practices paid for.

Under the 1938 program, winter legumes will be paid for at the rate of $1.50 an acre. These legumes, vetch, hop clover and bur clover, should be planted just as soon as moisture conditions permit. Forest plantings, properly made and cared for may be used toward the soil building allowance at the rate of $7.50 per acre. Rye grass, which is an excellent winter pasture, has a payment of $1.50 an acre. ### SERIAL STORY

MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER XXX

Feeley was standing away from the table as Tait seated Nelda. When Tait stepped back, the detective said, "What's this all about, Bob?"

"Keep your dress shirt on, Dan. I think we're getting somewhere. By the way, you told me to have my fun and wire that novelty company in Minneapolis." Tait reached into his pocket. "Here's a copy of their wired reply."

Feeley looked at the typewritten sheet, read the words: REGARDING YOUR INQUIRY LAST 60 DAYS HAVE SHIPPED CATALOG NOVELTIES YOUR CITY TO OSCAR MOORE, GEORGE MARSHALL, GAIL M. WILLIAMS, KEMPER FREEMAN, EDWARD TREMPER, HARRIS ROGERS, CALEB DAVIS, FRANK ROTCH, EINAR FRET, HEIM. MODERN NOVELTY, INCORPORATED.

Feeley's mouth was a grim line. "You're hot, Tait. But that won't hang Lud Dombey's murderer. And why is that a copy? Where's the original wire?"

"I dropped it by Harris Rogers' chair—and I notice it isn't there now."

Nervously Feeley lit a cigar. He said nothing, but his whole manner indicated to Bob Tait that he was with him, and that he was grateful.

The crowd in the Golden Bowl had become hushed as Weeks sat at the piano in a golden spotlight. No one there attempted to dance to the tune of "The Cat's Meow." To the jingles, the whistles, and the jittersburgs, to the devotees of Ludden Dombey, late tom of the swing cats, that would have been sacrilege. Everywhere in the big, glittering room couples slid into their seats at the tables.

THE Swingsters sat immobile. "Torchy" Stephens stood facing them, his baton poised. The gaunt Weeks' fingers trembled over the keys, then dropped down. He looked eerie, death-like, in the amber glow from the ceiling of the Golden Bowl. And then he played—played that wild incantation which the world had come to know as "The Cat's Meow." Played Beethoven and Liszt, played Berlin and Whiteman, lost in the deep cellars of Harlem, lost and groping.

Suddenly "Torchy" Stephens' baton fell like a guillotine. The band galvanized into action, swinging a tide of sound against the gaunt pianist there in the golden glow. "Torchy" set down his stick, picked up a clarinet. He sent that song. He was better in that moment than Ludden Dombey had ever been. He was taking on the crown of the king of swing—the crown that had had no wearer since that fateful night in the Golden Bowl when Dombey had crashed to the floor with his jeweled baton in his hand.

When the last strains of the song had died away, there was no applause. There was only a silence that was more complimentary than applause. Quickly Bob Tait walked across the crowded room, stepped up beside "Torchy" Stephens. His voice rang out clearly: "That song was for a man you all respected—a man you loved because he brought you happy times. You've heard many stories about who killed him here, and many stories why. Tonight I am going to point out the killer to you. I have officers here to take that killer. There is no—"

Suddenly the lights flashed out. The great Golden Bowl became, in an instant, a black abyss. Tait's voice died with the lights. And then, seemingly almost as the lights went out, there was a shot. A shot followed by the scream of women, the startled exclamations of men.

THE lights flashed on. Everyone in the Golden Bowl was transfixed. Everyone except Bob Tait who was hurrying toward the table he had reserved for his guests. Anne Lester was pale, one trembling hand outstretched. "Bob—Bob, that shot was from this table!" Her hand dropped down, brushed a napkin at Myrna's feet, and there lay a revolver!

Feeley snatched both napkin and gun, stuffed them into his pocket. "Everybody at this table—into the lounge," he roared.

Huddled in the lounge were Rogers, Macy, Nelda Starr, Anne, and Myrna—and a grim Dannie Feeley. "Look here," Rogers said, "you can't hold us here like this. And where is Tait?"

"He'll be here any minute," Feeley said. "He's developing a picture."

"Developing a—" Rogers' startled exclamation was cut short by the opening of the door. It was Tait. Without a word he handed a square of paper to Feeley who took only one glance, then stepped toward Harris Rogers.

"You're coming along with me," he said, "for the murder of Ludden Dombey."

It was a happy trio which the speeding taxi was bearing from the Pacific-Plaza to the Claremont. . . . Bob Tait, and Myrna and Anne.

"What I want to know," said Anne, "what was that thing you handed to Mr. Feeley?"

TAIT grinned. "It was a print of a photograph taken by a miniature camera specially rigged up. As I've told you, I had plenty of reason to suspect Rogers when I found he'd worn Nelda Starr's perfume and that he'd ordered one of those cat-calls. I figured that if he saw the wire from the novelty company, and heard me make the announcement up there that I knew who killed Dombey, he'd naturally try to bump me off—especially since he tried it once."

"But why didn't he do it when you were in Nelda Starr's apartment?" Myrna wanted to know.

"Because Nelda didn't know him as a murderer. They were friendly—but not that friendly. No, Nelda was by way of being a stooge for Rogers on occasion. But he never let her know he was a killer. And that was undoubtedly Rogers who followed you to the shack that night. I'm convinced he would have killed you then, Myrna, believing that he could then get control of the band."

"But why wouldn't he have killed me later?"

"Because Barkley and this fool Macy were set to make you the goy for Dombey's death. If he'd killed you he'd have been doing away with the person who could save his own neck."

"But what about Weeks?"

"Weeks was the front for Rogers. He's harmless enough. You see, Rogers wrote that hit song—'No Weeks. I tumbled to that when Weeks tried to palm off an original composition on us. It was terrible. Rogers figured he could get more out of Dombey if he had another guy to work through. It would keep his skirts clean when he wanted to try blackmail.'"

Anne sighed. "But I still don't understand that picture you gave to Feeley."

"I selected the table because the picture I took on the night of the murder showed that wisp of smoke. And I found that the table was in a direct line with where Dombey stood. Tonight the camera, open in the darkness, showed a streak of flame—the revolver shot. By marking it off into squares I established definitely that the shot had come from Rogers' place. Then he shoved the revolver across the table to Myrna. Very much the same trick he pulled the other time."

The taxi came to a halt. Anne looked out. "Here we are," she said. "I'm going to bed. You two come on up and use the living room. I have a hunch you've some things to talk over—and I don't mean murder."

Place for Children

Maintaining "decency and order" is a difficult task when there are several children in the family. But it is not so difficult in those homes where a definite place has been set aside for the children's books, toys and games.

Habits of neatness and order can be cultivated more easily in children if they have definite places to keep their belongings, declares Mrs. Ida A. Fenton, extension economist in house hold management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Most growing children have plan and sports equipment for both indoor and outdoor use. Things used out-of-doors, such as skates, bats, croquet sets, tennis racquets, and scooters are convenient if stored near one of the entrances frequently used by the children. If it is possible to arrange a closet, fitted with shelves and racks, or a chest, nearby, many of these articles can be kept accessible but out of the way. If the basement is dry, sometimes it is the best place for bulky playthings.

Indoor game boards, folding tables, and other recreational equipment that is generally used in the living room or dining room is most conveniently stored in those rooms or in a nearby hall closet, Mrs. Fenton suggests. Bookshelves in the living room need not be used entirely for books. They often prove to be a good place for keeping the various games in an orderly way, musical records, magazines, and so on.

A wicker chest in the living room or hall is a great help, as shelves can be made the right size for the different articles while folding card tables or game boards will go underneath. Window-seat lockers or chests are more satisfactory when the interior is divided into compartments for specific uses so that the article wanted will not always be at the bottom of the pile.

Emergency Shelf

Unexpected guests for dinner are no problem in many Hempstead county farm homes where the emergency shelf in the pantry is prepared in advance for just such an occurrence.

Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, has sent Miss Bullington a suggested list of foods for emergency shelf, and several menus which can be prepared with very little notice or trouble.

She suggests that the emergency shelf be stocked with a jar each of meats—beef, chicken, sausage; vegetables—green beans, tomatoes, beets, English peas, or butter beans, carrots and soup mixture; fruits—peaches, pears, apples, plums or berries of two or three varieties; three of preserves and three of pickles.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Burning 10,000,000,000 Cups of Coffee

COFFEE aroma hangs heavy over the Brazilian uplands these days, but there is very little pouring: the government instead is burning a few million more cups to hold down the supply and to keep up the price.

More than 3,000,000,000 coffee trees, three-fifths of all there are in the world, are troubling Brazil today. In the last crop year this nation alone produced 1,000,000 more bags than the world consumed. So the burning started back in 1931 continues, and is likely to continue for many seasons.

Since the desperate growers set fire to their surplus stocks in 1931 upwards of 60,000,000 bags have been destroyed. The standard bag of coffee weighs 132 pounds. So statisticians have figured that upwards of 10,000,000,000 cups of the steaming drink have evaporated into the skies.

Unsuccessfully, Brazilians first tried dumping their stocks into the ocean, later pressed the coffee beans into bricks to be used as fuel for locomotives and utility plants or as roadbed materials. Some of the ash is now being used as fertilizer on Brazilian farms. But in any event the problem goes unsolved. Burning is merely a temporary expedient.

Meanwhile, a current Brazilian stamp, shown here, advertises to the world the country's chief product, coffee, displayed as the berry, and in bags.

Students Soon Forget What They Had Read

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP)—Memory tests at the University of Iowa showed that 6,605 sixth grade school children forgot what they had read almost as soon as they read it.

Herbert F. Spitzer made the tests for a master's degree. He gave each child two 600-word articles and quizzed them after the readings. He found the children forgot 44 per cent of the facts contained in the articles shortly after reading. A week later they had forgotten 67 per cent.

Spitzer thereupon devised a "recall" test to be applied immediately after reading. These were found to reduce forgetfulness considerably.

A new detector for night blindness that may be used to determine qualifications of those seeking driving licenses is now available.

Do You Want Industries In Arkansas? Then Vote FOR Amendment No. 27

This amendment will change the Constitution so that a Workmen's Compensation Law can be passed.

Amendment No. 29

This amendment will exempt new industries from the State Tax, but not from City, County or School Taxes. Mississippi and Louisiana already have such a law and are getting all the new industries. This amendment will bring new industries to Arkansas.

Amendment No. 31

This amendment will stop the crooked lawyer from corrupt practices in the "Damage Suit Racket."
